Paul Edenbrow is the Director of Sixth Form and Business Studies teacher at Hampton College in Peterborough. He has been using Boardworks KS4 Business Studies on his SMART board since 2009.

Paul says: “The obvious benefit of Boardworks is that it’s time-saving. I do like the interactivity to it and the students do respond well to that. For example I like the ‘Who wants to be an A* student?’ quiz as you can get the whole class involved. I give them ABCD cards so they can all be part of the ‘ask the audience’ option. And they get quite animated when it comes to the dragging and dropping activities – they do like that.”

The format of the resources is also popular with Paul’s students: “It’s visually appealing with all the diagrams and the pictures and the colour schemes used. I also like the fact that you can edit the slides and I do do that.”

The comprehensive curriculum coverage is also a bonus for Paul: “I like the fact that even if I don’t necessarily use it, it does seem to cover the majority of the broad topics so it’s easy to find an appropriate slide and get some ideas from it – I definitely like those.”

Paul sums up by saying: “I do think it’s a good product. I really am pleased with it.”
